Maia Town Hall is the main responsible for this development always bearing in mind the well-being of the inhabitants. Sport activities are considered a fundamental part of this development.

The Town Hall has about 100 high level sports resorts from which we give evidence to indoor activities gym halls, stadiums, swimming pools, aerodrome, hippodrome, football fields, cycling track, among others.

The Town Hall strongly supports the associative movements, offering all kinds of means in order to promote their development. All the organised events are quite relevant due to the level of their participants as well as the variety of social groups that can be involved in them: children, youngsters, adults, elder people, and handicapped people among others. This is the reason why Maia is known to be the city of sport in Portugal. And, 2014, MAIA is EUROPEAN CITY of SPORT.

The residents of Maia are, by nature, adventurous, kind and welcoming, and they are happy to receive visitors. In fact, these are general characteristics of the Portuguese people, along with the ability to welcome great sports events. For example, our country was proud to have organised the last World Handball Championship in 2003 as well of organising the European Football Championship 2004 and all editions of Maia Handball Cup.

Maiastars is a club dedicated only to the female Handball. Hundreds of children and youngsters do regular sports activities in this club, which has already won several prizes in regional, national and international competitions. It is one of the largest handball clubs in terms of the level and the number of its participants, because of its strategic vision a promising future is expected for this club.
